EXTRACT from the regulations: (regulations available from our services or on www.prixbayeux.org)

The Bayeux-Calvados Award for war correspondents rewards a report on a conflict situation, or its consequences for civilian populations, or on a news item concerning the defence of individual freedoms and democracy.

For the Web Journalism category, the report must have been broadcast on the Ipad touch pad or placed online for the first time between 1st June 2015 and 31 May 2016.

Applications for the Web Journalism category will consist of one or more multimedia report(s) presented in the form of:

- videography (linear compilation of video(s) and photo(s))*
- a short multimedia project: video production based solely on photos*
- a web documentary (interactive interface).*
- reports designed specifically for the Ipad touch pad*

Obligatory:

- The "web journalism" production must have been broadcast on a website or via an Ipad touch pad application.*
- Group entries are accepted for this web journalism category, led by a representative journalist or a media company.*
- The "web journalism" production must be presented in French or English.*

Concerning the Web Journalism prize, the Candidate who has been designated as representative by his team undertakes to share the prize money with the members of his or her team who have made the report.

Personal data made known to the Organiser are processed within the framework of the principles implemented by the latter for the processing of personal data in accordance with the French law on personal data protection of 6 January 1978, as modified. In accordance with this law, candidates/journalists have the right to access, rectify and delete information concerning them at any time. These rights may be exercised with the Organiser. The Organiser may be led to communicate the surnames, first names and addresses, or other information forwarded by the candidates/journalists to other companies or to its partners. Candidates/journalists who do not wish this information to be communicated to third parties should specify this in writing when submitting their entry application. □
